

Appendix D: DRESS CODE AND UNIFORMS

We have chosen to be a school that embraces a uniform/dress code. It facilitates order and consistency and is easier to oversee than having parents, and/or students simply choose clothing on a day-to-day basis. Some adjustments of the uniform expectations are made seasonally because of temperature considerations. The elementary school uniform is the most casual of our uniforms because of the types of activities and outside play the students engage in.

No written uniform or dress code can cover all possible acceptable or unacceptable alternatives in fashion or style. Final authority for individual decisions rest with the school principal in consultation with the superintendent.

Students need to be in compliance with the dress code from the time they arrive on school grounds until they depart. If they are on the grounds (parking lots included) they should be neat and in uniform. If necessary, parents will be called to either come get the child from school or to bring appropriate clothing. Principals, or their designee(s), may grant exceptions (e.g. shoe repair) and authorize alternate clothing (alternate items should be virtually identical and there must be a plan in effect to obtain the correct item).

Jackets in class are a special circumstance. The dress code will be interpreted to mean that jackets, non-dress code sweaters, etc. are not to be worn in the buildings. They are to be taken off and left in the student's locker. On particularly cold days teachers may allow students in their classrooms to wear a jacket over their sweaters.

No written uniform or dress code can cover all possible acceptable or unacceptable alternatives in fashion or style. Final authority for individual decisions rest with the school principal in consultation with the superintendent.
